Le Programme STEP

Stratégies et Techniques contre l'exclusion Sociale et la Pauvreté

Le programme STEP

- Programme mondial de lutte contre l'exclusion sociale et la pauvreté du Département de la Sécurité Sociale du BIT.

- Initié en 1998, deux domaines d'intervention prioritaires:

  - L'extension de la protection sociale aux groupes exclus, en particulier dans le domaine de la santé ;
  - Le développement d'une approche intégrée de lutte contre l'exclusion sociale au niveau local.

- Intervenant simultanément à plusieurs niveaux (local / national / international).

- STEP: un instrument opérationnel de la " Campagne Mondiale d'extension de la protection sociale et la couverture pour tous ", lancée en 2000.

La stratégie de Step

- Création de partenariats et renforcement des réseaux existants: Alliance Internationale, AMIN, ACYM, la Concertation, etc.

- Développement de connaissances pour stimuler et promouvoir l'innovation comme un moyen de améliorer l'impacte:
  - capitalisation des pratiques dans le terrain ;
  - création de connaissances pour couvrir les manques de connaissances par la recherche et l'expérimentation ;
  - partage de connaissances par la production et la diffusion de publications, la formation, des projets; des ateliers, etc.

In Brief: The extension of social security in India

In recent years, the issue of social protection extension has gained a huge momentum while discussing at all levels the development agenda. The Government of India as well as the various state governments has demonstrated a wider awareness and stronger commitment to respond to the social protection needs of the presently excluded groups.

As a direct result, numerous actors of the civil society (community-based organisations, women's groups, trade informal economy trade unions, NGOs, microfinance institutions etc.) have already designed and set up in-house microinsurance schemes that were tailor-made to answer the priority needs and contributory capacity of their target groups.

GLOBAL EXTENSION OF SOCIAL SECURITY

» Relevance

Several international instruments affirm that every human being has the right to social security. Today only one of five people in the world has adequate social security coverage, while half of the world's population is without any social security protection at all.

Social protection is an important tool to prevent poverty, and strengthen the capacity to go out of poverty. The absence of social protection leads to greater chances of falling into poverty or remaining stuck in a poverty trap. Social security has also strongly suggested to contribute to economic growth by raising labour productivity and enhancing social stability.

Extending social protection to the whole population in the world represents a considerable challenge, both from a political and financial point of view as from a technical and institutional view.

The international community recognizes it as a key topic on their agenda. In 2001, during the International Labour Conference, Governments, Employers and Trade Unions reached a new consensus on social security: a major campaign should be launched in order to promote the extension of coverage of social security. During the G8 Conference"Shaping the Social Dimension of Globalisation" in 2007, social protection was highlighted as a key area of action and a crucial tool in combating poverty and promoting economic and social development, in particular in developing countries.

WHAT'S NEW ?

» First issue of a new publication series on microinsurance, the Key issues series, launched by GIMI.
These two-page length texts offer a synthetic vision of the state of knowledge about a specific theme: legislation, linkages, etc. They entail:
- a synthetic presentation of the current state of knowledge and the identification of knowledge gaps;
- the presentation of initiatives that allow to reduce these gaps, such working groups that gather experts; launching of research projects, experimental projects, and concrete actions in the field.
- links to different on-line resources and collaborating tools to go deeper into the topic; these links will take you to GIMI platform or other web sites.
*See the first issue
*The second issue, which will come out soon, will be dedicated to the theme of Linkages.

» Summary of and presentations made at the Microinsurance conference, 13-15th November 2007, Mumbai, India
The documents presented and discussed at the Microinsurance conference 2007 are now available here. These documents reflect a very wide variety of approaches to microinsurance, namely those of international organizations, NGOs, training centres, governmental development agencies, Ministries, insurance companies, and foundations.
